WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17th, 1862

Anniversary of Pavon.

The 17th of September is a memorable day in the history of Argentine revolutions, and marks a new epoch of order and liberal government. One short year has elapsed since the semi-barbarous followers of the old feudal system were routed and dispersed by the scholar-captain of Buenos Aires, who carried the banner of civilization to the uttermost confines of the republic. The 3rd of February saw the downfal of a tyrant, and flattered the vain hope of a happier order of things; but soon we were undeceived, and ten years of riot, bloodshed and anarchy made us almost regret the victory of Caseros.

We do not look back to this day twelvemonths with unmingled feelings of exultation, for we must remember what a sacrifice of life and treasure was the battle of Pavon. The high-flown panegyrics bestowed on our valiant infantry are pleasing to the self glory of our embryo heroes; but wise writers tell us that soldiers are less useful than plough-men, in an infant State. If one half the energy and money squandered in civil war, by South American republics, had been laid out in fostering industry and developing our resources, this continent would now stand a rival with the most flourishing nations of the Earth, instead of being a bye word for degeneracy, sloth and disorder.

One signal benefit dates from this anniversary, the growth of Argentine interests in England, for the battle of Pavon is there regarded as the termination of half-a-century of civil wars. Let us not defraud such honest expectations, but rather make the 17th of September a golden date in our annals entwined with the olive of peace, not shrouded with the nightshade of discord and national woe.

It is customary to salute the victor on the day of his triumph and our colleagues will probably make glorious mention of his able manoeuvres, brilliant charges &c. We leave the recital of bloody feats, and congratulate General Mitre for his wise administration since the eventful combat, praying Heaven to guide and prosper his efforts in the cause of National Unity and lasting peace.

Argentine interests in England.

The last British mail brings us files of the leading journals, which are full of River Plate projects, and speak in the grandest terms of our growing prosperity, immense resources, peaceful condition, and unrivalled advantages. Formerly we scarcely found a passing notice, our English colleagues evidently regarding Buenos Aires about as important as the black republic of Liberia. It would almost puzzle us to divine how immensely we have changed our character in a couple of months. In a whole week we could not reproduce the numerous flattering articles of the "Times" "Morning Star" "Railway Gazette" &c. The fact is Buenos Aires has become the rage, and writers, who are wearied with the American war and Mexican invasion, turn for relief to this remote region "flowing with milk and honey" as Sir. W. Parish poetically describes it. Since the battle of Pavon our home friends consider the Argentine provinces as commencing to enjoy an era of peace, that gift of heaven "to men of good will."

Perhaps some of the Opposition may say, these complimentary phrases are euphonious to the ear, but of no real import or benefit to the country. Or, of what value is a peaceful reputation in Europe, compared to the injury (!) caused Buenos Aires by the capitalization?

If we turn to the London Stock exchange, that great appraiser of national value, we shall find the laudations of the Press have produced such advantages for this Republic, as neither the sword of General Mitre nor the eloquence of Don Felix Frias could effect in a century of labours. The San Fernando Co. which languished and even expired during our civil wars, is now quoted at a premium of 4 per cent. and double the quantity of shares existing was sought for, on our Government guarantee of 7 per cent. It would be remembered that, a few days ago, our Finance Minister threw out grave doubts, in Congress, whether the line should be ever continued beyond Belgrano. Now we have the assurance of the completion of the whole line.

Again, the Chascomus project was reported to be still born, whereas we read that more than half the stock has been already allotted. Some of the most influential names of the English money-market are in the list of Directors, shewing the confidence of capitalists in our new enterprise. This is the best proof of how much Buenos Aires is thought of, by foreigners, who scarcely know its latitude, and whose judgment is very much formed on the good character given us by the papers. The railways of India, Southern Africa & Russia would seem better secured, yet English gold is drawn into the Argentine republic for a profitable speculation, while imparting life and activity to our paralysed territories.

Lastly, the London, B. Ayres and River Plate Bank, which was also reported to have burst, in its very formation, is now on foot, and like our other enterprises quoted at a premium varying from 5 to 38/s. Monied men seem to have taken pity on our pernicious system of paper currency which places in jeopardy the honest gains of trade; and threatens all of us with ultimate ruin, sitting like a nightmare on our slumbers. Great, indeed, must be the reliance of English capitalists who freight vessels with their gold for our convenience, asking only in return permission to deal among us, now that we have relinquished the frightful insignia of war, and turned our minds seriously to peace and business habits.

We will not weary the reader with a lengthened recital of the splendid future opening before us; neither will we dilate on the numberless benefits resulting from the above prosperous undertakings. Suffice it that our Argentine brethren appreciate them as the first fruits of tranquillity, and accept the pledge that Britannia offers to her protégée, of giving a helping hand to lead her forward in the path of progress and civilization. Here may we be permitted to indulge in the vain glory of stating that our name is mixed up with every favorable account of Buenos Ayres. The Standard is mentioned by all the home journals as a faithful authority on every subject which interests equally our friends here and our countrymen in England. None of the great champions of anti-federalization are looked to, for information. Not one of the brilliant articles of our colleagues are weighed in the balance of the stock exchange, when the Tribuna of London lay a finer million for the felicity of this republic. No clap-trap arguments, about Provincial rights, alarm the share holders, when they read in the "Times" or "Star" extracts from our paper, assuring them that the country is safe under our present Government.

The "Nacional" and "Tribuna" go to unnecessary trouble in publishing English and French market reports, for even their names are never cited in the London journals. The whole merit, therefore, of raising the credit of Buenos Ayres to its actual high standing is due to the punctuality of our Government in meeting its obligations, and to the zeal we have displayed in pushing the Argentine Republic into favorable notice, while our colleagues have been raving about capitalization and its fancied terrors.

The opposition at the Bar.

All who look for peace in this country, will agree with us that it has become indispensable to effect some radical changes. The anti-capitalists are at present striving against an irresistible torrent, but they are striving in vain, for they are under the iron hand of the majority. The people, the Congress, and the acting President have asked of the Chambers certain concessions, which they have peremptorily refused: they must now stand by the consequences. It is clear that the Chambers do not seek popular support, for if they did, they would have embraced the people's cause. We had hoped that some patriotic member of the local legislature would have introduced some compromise, to extricate us from the present miserable state of things; but no, so far from it, we now learn that they talk of proroguing. Such being the case it is evident that we are on the eve of a great crisis: it is clear that the faction which is amongst us has ulterior views. We charge that faction as being the enemy of law and order, and the friend of usurpation: hence we confess that, in the present question, we have certain partialities. We admit we have a repugnance to those men who wish to trouble, or, without intending it, do trouble the tranquility of this country and who try to disunite the people, when all should be united. We have a repugnance to the men who, too often exhuming from the tomb long-past and almost forgotten sorrows, would now gladly make them the means of destroying the bright future which we so fervently hope is in store for this country. We have a repugnance to the men who, by odious recriminations, keep us in one continued state of turmoil, and leave us no time for anything else, save politics. We have a repugnance to those men who wish to usurp power, and who claim exclusively for themselves the title of Argentine regenerators.

Still more have we a repugnance to those men who, by their conduct, evince clearly the design of turning the constitution into an instrument of their passions, their interests and their ambition:

We have a repugnance to these men, or this faction, not only for the above reasons, but because we firmly believe that, if they obtained all that they desire, they would make use of the power required, for no other end but to gratify private local interests, and that we should thus see them reproduce that system of government which, in the preceding years, has done so much mischief to the Argentine Republic.

We ask our Porteño friends not to dissimulate, but frankly to admit, that the present evils are at their height. Commerce is almost annihilated in the interior, agriculture is neglected, industry is expiring: and why? Because the sword is more lucrative than the plough: the only harvest that has been reaped in this country, for many years, has been the harvest of death.

And how long, may we ask, are things to go on in this way? Barbarous wars and intestine struggles have swallowed up the youth of the country, and in most of the provinces, to-day, the female sex has a large preponderance over the male. In our humble opinion, we consider that the centralization of power is the best and most effective remedy against the repetition of these evils. We consider that Buenos Ayres is, "par excellence," the capital of the Argentine republic; that Buenos Ayrean and Argentine interests are identical, and that the greatest of Porteño politicians could not allege, as to suppose that the provinces can ever outweigh Buenos Ayres in any matter of importance, or vital consideration.

London and R. Plate Bank

PROSPECTUS.

The establishment of peace in the Argentine Confederation offers a favourable opportunity for carrying into effect a project long entertained to bring English capital to extend banking facilities to the great cities of Buenos Ayres and Monte Video. Interest of money rules high in both cities, viz, from 10 to 18 per cent per annum.

The average monthly remittances to Europe from both places are upwards of £400,000, exclusive of Government remittances, a large portion of which would naturally be negotiated through a Bank possessing the requisite facilities for carrying on such business. A considerable amount of legitimate bills, drawn against shipments of manufactures from this side, may also be expected to pass through the Bank.

No more promising field exists for legitimate banking operations than the great cities of La Plata. The ground is comparatively unoccupied, and the rapid expansion of commercial enterprise may be looked upon as certain in a region proverbially so fertile. The increase of the great staples of wool, hides, and tallow is virtually illimitable.

There are many native capitalists who will be glad to keep deposit accounts with this Bank, because of the security and convenience it will afford them. Such deposits may, therefore, be expected to form a prominent feature in the business of the Bank.

With the introduction of railways and steam navigation, trade is assuming large dimensions, and only needs the judicious application of foreign capital to develope the immense resources of the country, and to augment the consumption of British manufactures. For several years back there has been a continuous increase in a most desirable class of immigration from nearly all parts of Europe, to the healthy and fertile shores of the River Plate and its tributaries; and the Governments of the respective Republics are sedulously enhancing every inducement in this direction.

The business of the Bank will comprise current accounts, negotiating bills of exchange, discounting good bills and other convertible securities, affording legitimate commercial facilities, and transacting all other banking operations. The management of its affairs will be entrusted to reliable and experienced persons, possessing the requisite local knowledge. The Head Office and seat of the Direction will be in London.

It would be superfluous to point out the great success which has attended well-conducted Joint Stock Banks in India, the colonies, and foreign countries, having their direction in London; but it is confidently believed that such banking would be attended with still more signal success in the great trading cities of La Plata.

The credit of the Argentine Confederation and of the Republic of Uruguay stands deservedly high in England.

The promoters of the Bank have the assurance of the representatives of these States, that their respective Governments would regard with much favour the establishment of a Bank on sound commercial principles, as a powerful means of contributing to the advancement of commercial relations with Great Britain.

Prospectuses and forms of application for Shares may be obtained of the Brokers and Solicitors, as above; at the Temporary Offices of the Bank, at the Argentine Consulate, the Monte Videan Consulate, 11, Parliament Street, S. W.; and at the several Vice-Consulates of the two Republics in the United Kingdom.

FOREIGN MISCELLANY.

THE CONFEDERATE RAM ARKANSAS.—The New York Tribune, of the 25th ultimo, has a lengthy report of the attack of the Confederate ram Arkansas upon the Federal fleet at Vicksburg. It appears from this report that the Arkansas commenced the attack by suddenly coming upon a naval detachment making a reconnoissance up the Zazoo river. She first chased a wooden steamer, the Tyler, killing and wounding upwards of thirty of her crew. She then engaged the iron-clad gunboat Carondolet, the crew of which vainly tried to board her The Arkansas, however, burst one of Carondolet's steam pipes, and the crew were so frightened that some fifty of them jumped overboard, and many were drowned. The following is a description of the Arkansas: "The Arkansas, which is a ram as well as a gunboat, is not more than half as large as one of Davis's gunboats; is low and flat, covered with double railway iron; built with slanting sides, without decks or any openings or apertures, save the ports, carries twelve large guns, three on each side, two forward and two aft; has one chimney, and looks almost, if not quite, invulnerable. She is of a light brown hue, much like the banks of the Mississippi and at a distance could not well be distinguished therefrom. No human being was visible on or about her, though her guns were promptly and accurately fired, and her unseen sharpshooters directed their pieces at every man they could see within range." After engaging the Carondolet and driving off the Queen, the Arkansas ran the gauntlet of the entire Federal fleet of fifteen well-appointed war vessels. "This formidable array had no terrors for the Arkansas. She moved on as if they had not been there, and many of the officers of the fleet were for a moment lost in wonderment at the extreme boldness of her most perilous attempt. As she moved down, one of Farragut's gunboats opened fire upon her, then another and another. Whether they struck her or not I could not perceive, but their shot could not have harmed her. She replied promptly, and the firing soon grew warm. I could hardly turn my eyes away from the small strange, fearless craft descending the river, with the black trail above and behind her, and the baleful flash of her steadily revolving guns."

The Arkansas then engaged the Federal Ram Lancaster, and burst her "mud receiver" causing a fearful explosion of steam and the death of eleven persons. Onward the Arkansas moved, as if she were covered with the armour of invincibility and beyond the power of harm. The fearless foe passed the long line of fire unscathed, running the dangerous gauntlet without receiving an apparent wound. After she had passed all the Union vessels she sent back their shots defiantly, and at last disappeared round the head of the peninsula, and ran under the guns of one of the water batteries of Vicksburg.

LOCAL EVENTS.

2D OF THE LINE.—This regiment arrived yesterday from Rosario on board the war steamer 25 de Mayo.

They return to their homes after a fatiguing campaign of sixteen months during which they have been incessantly in active service and traversing hundreds of leagues on foot.

At the same time part of the national guard [cavalry] of the districts of San Nicolas, San Pedro and Baradero have returned to their homes.

Speaking with a very experienced and brave officer lately arrived from the interior, we have heard him praise in very high terms the bravery of the San Pedro cavalry, especially in the battle between the Chacho and Sandes in which they distinguished themselves very much.

Yet strange to say, these same soldiers fled in Cepeda and in Pavon.

ITALIAN HOSPITAL.—The committee have called for tenders for the continuation of this building which has been delayed for such a long time.

TODAY.—A religious ceremony will take place in San Nicolas Church, in celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Pavon.

A band of music will attend.

D. MARTIN NINO.—Died suddenly on Sunday night. His remains were taken to the cemetery yesterday.

MONTE VIDEO.—The question between the Vicar General of the Republic supported by the Papal nuncio, against the curate of the Matriz Church, continued giving considerable trouble to the Government.

A special meeting of the most eminent lawyers had been called to hear their opinions on the matters but as yet no decision had been arrived at.

ROSARIO TREASURY.—According to the Patria the funds at the disposal of the national Government in that place amounted to two millions currency.

MENDOZA.—A special despatch from Mendoza states that the Presidential elections resulted as follows.

President.

General Bartolomé Mitre.

Vice President.

Dr. Marcos Paz.

This is the fifth province which has given a similar result.

ACADEMY OF COMMERCE

Directors — J. Debarlieri & S. Reyfuss.

Establishments of that nature as the above-mentioned, have given in Germany and the United States, such well known great advantages, for the last ten years, as to their superiority in every branch of practical instruction, that it seems unnecessary to go into any particulars as to their merits.

The system of instructing by Pestalozzi and Salsman, improved by Diesterwey and many others (names well known throughout the world) have for basis to draw the attention of the scholars to the practical, and attain by that method, in an easy and simple way, and in a very short time, the most astonishing results.

The undersigned, by long experience in the first commercial houses in Europe, and afterwards in some of the best schools, confidently believe themselves to be thoroughly competent to establish here such an Academy, and to manage it according to the name.

We take the liberty to inform the public, that the Academy shall be opened on the first of October.

As for the informations required in regard to scholars, [interns and externs] the Directors will give all references.

N. B.—The studies are obligatory for all scholars in the same classes. Branches not mentioned in the Programme, shall be extra prices.

EDITION FRANÇAISE.

Septembre 17—1862.

ETRANGER.

"La reconnaisance de l'Italie par la Prusse se rattache á des événements politiques dans lesquels l'Autriche joue un grand rôle.

"Cette derniére puissance n'est pas éloignée de reconnaître l'Etat existant dans la Peninsule, á certaines conditions qui forment en ce moment la base d'un échange de notes entre les cabinets de Berlin, de Vienne et de Paris."

La reconnaissance par la Prusse du royaume italien met hors des gonds les réactionnaires allemands. Les journaux autrichiens essaient de tous les procedés pour intimider la Prusse; leurs critiques, leurs persiflage, ne changent rien au fait qui les humilie á juste titre. Il faut que l'Autriche se résigne aux destinées que lui préparent le triomphe prochain de l'indépendance, du droit et de la liberté. Ses conseilles commencent á s'inquiéter; la prudence leur vient tard, mais elle leur vient. La Chambre haute conseillait il y a quelques jours, au ministre de transiger sur les affaires vénitiennes. "Reconnaissez le royaume d'Italie, dit aujourd'hui un des plus fougueux agents de la contre-revolution, le Journal de Vérone." Et il ajoute: "Obtenez l'engagement de l'Italie de respecter Vénétie." L'Italie, qui grandit, n'a que faire de l'adhésion de l'Autriche, qui s'éclipse. Tant qu'il y aura un soldat alleman dans la Péninsule, aucune transaction ne sera possible. Les pretentions ont changé de place: c'est aujourd'hui á l'Italie á imposer des conditions, elle n'a plus á en accepter. L'Autriche n'a qu'une voie de salut, c'est de s'occuper de ses affaires intérieures et de sa situation federale. Qu'elle lasse la part de la liberté ou la liberte se la fera toute seule.

Garibaldi et la France.

Nous, de même que tous les amis de la liberté et de l'independance des peuples avons salué le réveil de l'Italie d'un de ces cris que seul l'accomplissement d'un ardent désir peut arracher á l'âme; et nos vœux les plus chers ont accompagné nos troupes dans leurs valiants efforts, ainsi qu'ils ont suivi la marche audacieuse des volontaires de Garibaldi.

Pendant les quatre années qui ont suivi la formation d'une nation nouvelle, que sa modération et son esprit d'ordre signalaient a l'admiration de l'Europe, tout a marché au gré des desirs des plus ardents apôtres de cette noble cause. Reconnue par la France et par l'Angleterre l'Italie n'a pas tardé á conquérir sa place dans le concert Européen et les plus orgueilleuses puissances du Nord, mêmes, ont chacune á leur tour, tendu une main fraternelle á leur nouvelle compagne. L'Italie des Césars et des Pontifes est morte mais elle a deposé en mourant le germe d'une jeune et vigoureuse nation dont les destins célébrent d'avance de toutes les gloires passées de cette terre des héros.

Les Italiens sont fiers d'avoir régénéré leur patrie, et certes ils méritent la gloire dont ce fait qui sera a jamais célébre, les couvrira de toute eternité; mais la France n'a t elle pas aussi le droit de s'enorgueillir d'avoir coopéré á cette tâche suprême et d'avoir aidé ce nouveau Phenix á renaître de ses cendres?

D'où vient donc que la Sicile, dont les montagnes ne retentissaient naguére encore que des cris de liberté, est maintenant le théâtre d'une lutte fratricide entre les vainqueurs des tyrans et les libérateurs de l'Italie? D'où vient cet appel á la haine du nom français et au souvenir des Vépres Siciliennes?

Il n'est que trop facile de proclamer le nom du grand moteur de ce cataclysme qui se prepare, cataclysme moral, plus effrayant qu'une revolution, car ici les amis de la liberté luttent contre leurs anciens fréres d'armes, contre ceux qui ont avec eux affranchi la patrie.

Garibaldi, inspiré par Mazzini, compromet sa gloire et donne aux ennemis de la commune cause la satisfaction de le voir se perdre dans l'opinion de l'Europe. C'est en vain que ses vrais amis lui crient de s'arreter dans cette lutte fratricide où il y a tout á perdre: le mauvais génie du héros lui fait diriger ses armes glorieuses contre ces mêmes légions, qui sur les champs de la Lombardie ont fait reculer les bataillons de l'Autriche et affranchi le sol de l'Italie.

Le sort en est jeté, le sang á coulé de nouveau dans les campagnes siciliennes, et a marqué d'un sombre sillon la division des partis. D'un côté sont les défenseurs de l'unité italienne, qui attendent avec patience le moment de compléter le grandeur de l'Italie; de l'autre sont les impatients qui préparent la ruine de leur pays; et pour le malheur du peuple italien, Garibaldi couvre de ce dernier parti de son nom.

Un appel á l'Opinion.

Lorsqu'un despote est traillé par la raison et la justice d'une part et de l'autre par l'attrait qu'il trouve á imposer sa volonté ou ses caprices, il ne lui arrive que trop souvent de pencher du côté où ses passions sont dardées. Comme Alexandre, il préfére trancher le Nœud Gordien, á le dénouer. Mais quand, dans une République, il surgit un de ces conflits d'opinion où le sort de la nation est en jeu, le même procédé facile et commode d'aplanir les obstacles ne se présente plus sous la main du Pouvoir qui doit avoir recours á d'autres moyens pour sortir du dilemme.

La Confédération Argentine est [illegible] dans ce cas. Quatre mois d'efforts laborieux n'ont abouti qu'a produire un etat de malaise et de mécontentement aussi funeste dans ses effets présents que dangereux pour l'avenir. Une grande question était á resoudre. Il s'agissait de désigner le foyer de la nation, le centre de la vie et du mouvement, de l'impulsion et de l'initiative, le point où les idées devaient converger et d'où elles se repandraient en ondes et productives sur tout le pays. Il fallait une Capitale en fin et l'Argentin ne peut l'obtenir.

Mille projets importants, mille questions vitales demandent une attention prompte et sérieuse, et tout reste dans l'expectative jusqu'á ce que cette première de toutes les difficultés soit levée.

Les onces marchent sur 500 avec autant de chance de succés que Alaric sur Rome; les ministres se retirent par couples, le chef de l'Etat désigné par le Peuple hésite á accepter un poste, qu'on ne veut pas le mettre en position de remplir dignement, enfin la Nation elle même se voit menacée d'une nouvel ébranlement.

Il faut donc sortir de cette alternative d'espoir et de crainte, de confiance et de découragement et puisque les faits prouvent que deux opinions assez fortes pour arréter la marche des affaires du pays, se trouvent en présence; que celui dont émane tout pouvoir constitué puisse proclamer sa volonté.

Il est question, di-ton, d'avoir recours á un plebiscite, et nous ne voyons pas quelle opposition une pareille idée pourrait soulever; puis qu'il est démontré que ni le Pouvoir, ni le Congrés, ni les Chambres provinciales ne trouvent moyen d'arriver á un commun accord; un appel au peuple aurait au moins l'immense avantage de décider promptement la question et de faire taire toutes les dissidences.

La Constitution est lá pour indiquer au Gouvernement la marche á suivre et le Congrés aidant, un pareil appel aurait lieu en observant strictement les voies tracées par ce pacte que tous les partis invoquent tour á tour avec une si touchante unanimité.

était qu'une liberté á laquelle on donne un passeport jaune.

Et autour de cela bien des amertumes. Il avait calculé que sa masse, pendant son séjour au bagne, aurait dû s'élever a cent soixante et onze francs. Il est juste d'ajouter qu'il avait oublié de faire entrer dans ses calculs le repos forcé des dimanches et fêtes qui, pour dix-neuf ans, entraînait une diminution de vingt-quatre francs environ. Quoi qu'il en fut, cette masse avait été reduite, par diverses retenues locales, a la somme de cent neuf francs quinze sous, qui lui avait été comptée á sa sortie.

Il n'y avait rien compris, et se croyait lésé. Disons le mot, volé.

Le lendemain de sa libération, á Grasse il vit devant la porte d'une distillerie de fleurs d'oranger des hommes qui déchargeaient des ballots. Il offrit ses services. La besogne pressait, on les accepta. Il se mit á l'ouvrage. Il était intelligent, robuste et adroit, il faisait de son mieux, le maitre paraissait content. Pendant qu'il travaillait, un gendarme passa, le remarqua, et lui demanda ses papiers. Il fallut montrer le passeport jaune. Cela fait, Jean Valjean reprit son travail. Un peu auparavant, il avait questionné l'un des ouvriers sur ce qu'ils gagnaient a cette besogne par jour; on lui avait répondu trente sous. Le soir venu, comme il était forcé de repartir le lendemain matin, il se présenta devant le maître de la distillerie et le pria de le payer. Le maître ne proféra pas une parole, et lui remit quinze sous. Il réclama. On lui répondit: [illegible] Il insista. Le maître le regarda entre les deux yeux et lui dit: [illegible]

La société, l'Etat, en lui diminuant sa masse, l'avait volé en grand. Maintenant c'était le tour de l'individu qui le volait en petit.

Libération n'est pas délivrance. On sort du bagne, mais non de la condamnation.

Voila ce qui lui était arrivé a Grasse. On a vu de quelle façon il avait été accueilli a D.

L'homme réveillé

Donc, comme deux heures du matin sonnaient a l'horloge de la cathédrale, Jean Valjean se réveilla.

Ce qui le réveilla, c'est que le lit était trop bon. Il y avait vingt ans bientôt qu'il n'avait couché dans un lit, et, quoiqu'il ne se fût pas deshabillé, la sensation était trop nouvelle pour ne pas troubler son sommeil.

Il avait dormi plus de quatre heures. Sa fatigue était passée. Il était accoutumé a ne pas donner beaucoup d'heures au repos.

Il ouvrit les yeux, et regarda un moment dans l'obscurité autour de lui, puis il les referma pour se rendormir.

[illegible] se grossissant de nuées [illegible] disparaissant tout a coup comme dans une eau fangeuse et agitée. Beaucoup de pensées lui venaient, mais il y en avait une qui se representait continuellement et qui chassait toutes les autres. [illegible] grande cuiller [illegible] posés sur la table

Ces six couverts d'argent l'obsédaient.—Ils étaient lá.—A quelques pas.—A l'instant où il avait traversé la chambre d'a côté pour venir dans celle où il était, la vieille servante les mettait dans un petit placard á la tête du lit.—Il avait bien remarqué ce placard.—A droite, en entrant par la salle á manger.—Ils étaient massifs.—Et de vieille argenterie.—Avec la grande cuiller, on en tirerait au moins deux cents francs. [illegible]

[illegible]

Il resta ainsi une heure [illegible] quelque chose de sinistre [illegible] ainsi dans cette [illegible] maison endormie. Tout a coup il se baissa, ôta ses souliers et les posa doucement sur la natte près du lit, puis il reprit sa posture de rêverie et redevint immobile.

Au milieu de cette méditation hideuse, les idées que nous venons d'indiquer remuaient sans relâche son cerveau, entraient, sortaient, rentraient, faisaient sur

SHEEP WASH.

A sure cure for the Scab in Sheep

No Sheep-Farmer should be without it.

The valuable preparation which is now used by nearly all the wool growers of this country, is a concentrated extract, one pound of which is equal to ten pounds of tobacco, retaining in this compact form all the properties of the raw material. The only labor required to render the wash ready for use, is, to stir the paste into the quantity of cold water, needed for the number of sheep to be cured.

The most satisfactory recommendations of its perfect safety, simplicity and utility, from the principal Estancieros of this contry may be had on application to the undersigned. Full directions for use are given on each tin.
